MURDER TRIAL IS INTERRUPTED

CROWN POINT, Ind., April 27.—The preliminary hearing of Spera Zahari, of Hammond, charged with murder, before Justice of the Peace, Kemp, at Crown Point yesterday, was twice interrupted to allow the J. P. to tie the knot for impatient couples anxious to be off on their honeymoon.

BUILDING DEAD AT SOUTH BEND

Because of the labor troubles of the local building trades, all construction work on the Oliver housing movement at South Bend was suspended at noon Saturday.

One hundred and fifty partly built houses, which were to have been used by the employees to be brought there to man the new shops of the Oliver Chilled Blow Works, remain unfinished. It was the intention to erect 1,000 houses this year and to erect a number in each of the three succeeding years. It is probable that all building will be suspended unless the trouble with common laborers, who are demanding from 75 to 85 cents an hour and a closed shop, is settled within the next few days.

C. Robertson, 1301 Adams street, after a wild chase in the dark of the night.

Robertson who had been in a nearby restaurant was on his way home became suspicious of Coback and another man and after reaching the corner, hid himself in the darkness of a hallway to watch their movements. A moment later he heard the crash and saw Coback reach in the window and then run. He then gave chase, catching Coback over a block away. Robertson then turned his prisoner over to a police officer. Coback still had the two trays of rings and a number of lockets under his coat.

He was charged with burglary and this morning his case was filed direct in the Criminal court at Crown Point.
